Accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE)

OVERVIEW
The Adult-Gerontology Clinical Nurse Specialist (AG-CNS) DNP is a practice-focused doctoral program that prepares nurses to be leaders at the highest level of clinical nursing practice. Graduates function as expert providers of care to patients/families in acute and ambulatory care settings.

Coursework and clinical practice hours focus on developing knowledge and skills necessary for advanced practice, including content on health promotion/protection and management of problems frequently seen in adults with acute, critical or complex chronic health problems. Additional courses prepare students for their professional roles through coursework that develops organizational, economic, and leadership skills. Clinical courses provide hands-on experience focused on competencies within the three spheres of influence in which a CNS practices. Students may choose a clinical emphasis in cardiology or critical care, oncology, trauma emergency preparedness or directed study. Clinical practicums provide opportunities to design, implement, and evaluate projects with faculty/preceptor guidance. A culminating DNP Project reflects the student’s application of knowledge gained throughout the curriculum.

Graduates are eligible to sit for national certification exams in Adult-Gerontology Clinical Nurse Specialist offered by the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC), or American Association of Critical Care Nurses. Graduates may also sit for the Advanced Oncology Certified Clinical Nurse Specialist exam offered by the Oncology Nursing Society (if oncology emphasis is selected).

OBJECTIVES
Graduates of the AG-CNS DNP are prepared to:
• Develop and manage programs of care for populations of patients
• Act as a leader, consultant, mentor and change agent in advancing nursing practice
• Produce quality, cost-effective outcomes as a clinical outcomes manager
• Lead multidisciplinary groups in implementing innovative projects
• Develop research utilization projects that test innovative practice
